Author's Full Name¹

Author's Full Name²

ABSTRACT: The text of the ABSTRACT must be typed in the same font and size as the text, written in the language of the manuscript, with only the first letter capitalized, without bold, in only one paragraph of text, containing 150 to 250 words. When appropriate, it should present the objective(s) of the research, the methodology, and the main results.

KEYWORDS: There must be 3 to 5 keywords separated by a dot, written in the language of the manuscript, and typed in the same font and size as the text, with only the first letter capitalized.

ABSTRACT: ABSTRACT in a different language of the manuscript, following the same characteristics described above for the abstract in the language of the manuscript. The Brazilian Association of Linguistics is a signatory of the Helsinki Initiative on Multilingualism in Scientific Communication. The signatories of this initiative support the promotion of linguistic diversity through the publication of research results in all languages.

KEYWORDS: KEYWORDS in a different language from the manuscript, following the same characteristics described above for the keywords in the language of the manuscript.

1 Main text

The manuscript must be typed in Word (or a compatible program), must have between 12 and 30 pages, including references, and must be formatted as follows: A4 page layout, no line/page number, 2.5cm margins; the text must be in one column, in 12pt Times New ¹The first author is the lead author. The author's footnote must have: degree, affiliation, e-mail, ORCID ID, and the roles of each author according to CRediT taxonomy in case of co-authorship.

²From the second author on, all of the other contributors are co-authors. The co-authors' footnote must have: degree, affiliation, e-mail, ORCID ID, and the role of each author according to CRediT taxonomy.

Roman font, with a 1.5cm space between lines (except for the References, which should have a 1cm space between lines) and with a 1.25cm first line indentation (except in the References and in the headings of the sections, which must be left-justified and have no indentation).

Italics (italíco) should be used only to indicate words or phrases in a language different from the manuscript. “Quotation marks” should be used only for short quotations (up to three lines) and to highlight words or phrases, example sentences, titles, slang, or neologisms.

Notes must be written as footnotes in 10pt font and should only be restricted to information relevant to the text. They should not contain references.³

CadLin receives submissions in any language. In the case of texts written in languages other than Portuguese and English, authors should indicate a list of at least five possible referees. Before submitting the manuscripts to CadLin, the authors should make a careful textual revision. The editors and/or reviewers of the Journal will not make any textual revision.

Authors who submit their paper to CadLin will automatically declare that ethical principles have been observed, as well as the legal requirements related to ethics in research, both in the country where they maintain their institutional bond and in the country where the people participating in the research live.

Papers accepted for publication in CadLin may be accompanied by badges from the Center for Open Science that recognize open scientific practice: (a) publicly available data, (b) publicly available materials, and (c) pre-registered research plans. If you would like more information on how to obtain an open science practice badge, please refer to the following: <http://www.abralin.org/circulares/cadlin/badges-cadlin.pdf>. To request the inclusion of one of these badges, authors should complete the Application for Open Scientific Practices Badges, available here: <http://www.abralin.org/circulares/cadlin/badges-form-cadlin.pdf>.

³The notes should be placed as footnotes rather than endnotes and must be restricted to content, not to citations. Times New Roman font, size 10.

2 About the sections

Section headings must be numbered (except for the Acknowledgments, if any, and the References). They must be in bold with just the first letters of the heading and any proper nouns capitalized. They should be followed by a blank line.

3 Illustrations (Tables, Graphs, Figures, Boxes)

The illustrations (Tables, Graphs, Figures, Tables) will have their legends and contents typed in the text font, size 10, without bold. The legend (title) of each illustration should begin with the name of the illustration to which it refers (in bold), numbered sequentially (for example: Table 1., Table 2., Graph 1., Graph 2.), and inserted below the illustration. The source should be cited (in case of previously published illustrations). All illustrations should be inserted in the body of the text immediately after the paragraph in which they were cited, and not in the form of annexes. Please try to use grayscale illustrations whenever possible. If you have to use colored illustrations, please make sure that they are friendly to colorblind people.

4 Citations

Quotations must follow the ABNT NBR 10520 guidelines. In indirect citations (paraphrases), the author should be cited in parentheses by last name, in all capital letters, separated by a comma from the year of publication (SWERTS, 1997). If the name of the author is cited in the text, only the year should be indicated in parentheses: According to Oliveira Jr (2000), [...].

Whenever the indication of the page is necessary, as in a direct quotation, the number of the page must be placed right after the year, separated from it by a comma and preceded by “p.”, for example, (OLIVEIRA JR, 2000, p. 95). Direct quotations of up to three lines are made inside the text in double quotation marks, while direct quotations of more than three lines should be separated from the text with a 4cm indentation to the left, font size 10, with-out quotation marks and without indentation of the first line.

The citations of several works by the same author published in the same year should be distinguished by lower case letters after the date, without spacing (FERREIRA, 2007a).

When the work has two or three authors, all may be indicated, separated by semicolons (HUETTIG; ROMMERS; MEYER, 2011); when there are more than three authors, the first name is indicated, followed by et al. (ALMEIDA et al., 2013). In this case, it is advisable to indicate all authors in the References.

The References at the end of the text must also comply with ABNT norms. The content of the articles and the accuracy of the references are the sole responsibility of the authors. The Editors and the Brazilian Association of Linguistics do not assume any responsibility for the opinions or statements of the authors. All and only the works of authors cited in the text should appear in the References, which are typed with single spacing between lines, separated by a simple space, and listed in alphabetical order by the surname of the first author. Where available, the authors should include the URLs and DOIs of the references used.

Acknowledgements

Acknowledgments and mention of research funding (scholarships, financial aid, and the respective funding agencies) that enabled the research should not be included in a footnote but in an Acknowledgments section at the end of the article, before the References.
