\accent Usage

This theme comes with a custom command called `\accent`, which, by default, behaves exactly like `\alert`. However, additionally, one of the theme's colours can be specified as an option to allow for easy highlighting in colours besides the default one.

highlighted	<code>\accent{highlighted}</code>
highlighted	<code>\accent [lightblue] {highlighted}</code>
highlighted	<code>\accent [midblue] {highlighted}</code>
highlighted	<code>\accent [darkblue] {highlighted}</code>
highlighted	<code>\accent [red] {highlighted}</code>
highlighted	<code>\accent [lightgreen] {highlighted}</code>
highlighted	<code>\accent [darkgreen] {highlighted}</code>
highlighted	<code>accent [turquoise] {highlighted}</code>
highlighted	<code>\accent [violet] {highlighted}</code>

Listings Template

Various styles have been provided with this theme for external tools. See the `styles` folder for external library and application styles. LaTeX-related styles have been added to `beamerthemelu.sty`. As an example, take the following code listing to which the Listings style `lu` has been applied.

1 | print('Hello world!') # An example of Hello World in Python

Standout

This template reverses the colour usage. It could, for example, be used to review or recap information or draw special attention to a particular aspect.

Closure can be used as a template for a final slide. Questions?
